Making psychological health and safety more accessible for all

Promoting mental health and preventing psychological injury at work are at the core of this program. The Mental Health Commission of Canada has developed a National Standard for Psychological Health and Safety in the Workplace, outlining 13 key factors that influence mental health in the workplace.

This training aims to make these factors understandable and actionable for everyone.

Upon completion of each course, you'll receive a certificate and achievement badges, which you can proudly display on LinkedIn or other social media platforms.
